Extremely low priority question:

Is it accurate that the Clerk's office accepts faxed replacement forms/ballots but not scanned (PDF) forms/ballots?

As someone who's running a nearly paperless business and doesn't even have a fax machine, I'm struggling to understand that policy (the fax is a dying piece of equipment headed the way of the typewriter and the pager...i.e. rare occasional use only. Although I do also understand that government is not necessarily an early adopter of technology changes :) Most scans are also more legible than most faxes. I know I'm not alone in not having a fax machine. It's becoming common.

Is there a logic to this, or is it just current policy? (Or is the information I got incorrect?)

Thanks! :)

Tara,

The City Attorney has opined that for business improvement district establishment elections ballots can be sent by fax but not emailed. Ballots can also be mailed in or delivered in person.

I believe the reasoning is that a pdf (an electronic document) can be signed electronically which we can't accept.

Roger. I follow that logic (e-signatures are still in the process of gaining wider legal acceptance), but couldn't the Clerk accept PDFs if they contain a non-electronic signature?

Thanks for the answer!

Yes we can except that a pdf is really only a pdf when it's in electronic form. Once it's on paper is just a copy.
